Residential Conservation Service Program

Building upon our long-standing commitment to energy conservation and excellent customer service, the Georgetown Municipal Light Department is pleased to offer a new Residential Conservation Energy Hotline to help you conserve energy and reduce your energy costs.

It is quick, convenient and best of all, there is no charge to you for this service. The Toll-Free Energy Hotline (888-772-4242) is available Monday through Friday during business hours. Representative will provide assistance for question on energy conservation, energy efficiency, conservation measures, (e.g. insulation), or if you simply want information on a specific end-uses of energy, such as appliances.

The goal of the Energy Hotline is to provide the tools and services necessary to help our customers make better informed decisions regarding energy usage and efficiency.

Among the tools available free of charge to our customers through the Energy Hotline are:

- Objective over the phone technical assistance;
- Conservation booklets;
- Literature and tips on energy conservation practice and measures;
- Energy Star appliance information;
- Referral to energy conservation websites;
- In home energy audit services;

If you would like more information, call the toll free energy Hotline at 1-888-772-4242.
