Director's Notes: Arriving at the end of the holiday season, New Year's Day in New England can often be a cold and anticlimactic start to the new year. We have spent more than one New Year's Day unthawing frozen pipes at our house or my parents' old house and the start of one year was marked by an emergency furnace repair. For several years, we drove into the city to view the First Night ice sculptures, stamping our feet and blowing on our fingers to keep warm in temperatures that only the sculptures could enjoy! Although it is often a chilly start to the new year in our neck of the woods, I do remember a year that arrived with almost balmy temperatures. First snow and the typically damp and cold weather of November and December had arrived on time but warmer temperatures had melted the earlier ice and snow by New Year's Eve. It was not a good year for ice sculptures! New Year's Day dawned with blue skies and temperatures that climbed into the 60s by noon. Gathering our girls and dog into our station wagon, we headed to the beach for a walk. The sun was warm on our shoulders and we unzipped our jackets and loosened our scarves in the slight breeze. Gulls circled overhead and scoter ducks rode the crest of waves just off shore. The sand crunched under our feet as the girls and Buffy ran up and down the beach filling their pockets with shells and driftwood. It was the perfect antidote to a winter that had been dark and cold. Although we knew that there would be plenty of snow still to shovel, we realized that the warmth and happiness of this New Year's Day would carry us through the remainder of winter, comforting and assuring us that spring would not be far away! Whether you spend the holiday on an unseasonably warm beach or just surrounded by the warmth of family and friends, we wish you all a joyous New Year!
